Holocaust Survivors lived through inconceivable cruelty and brutality. These Survivors are encountering new losses during the aging process that can often trigger painful and frightening reminders of their past traumatic experiences. How do we, as palliative care professionals and caregivers, best support Holocaust Survivors at this vulnerable time?

This workshop will explore both best practices and unique challenges of working with survivors at end-of-life. Participants will be introduced to the principles of trauma informed care; a holistic approach that promotes dignity, strength and empowerment with victims of trauma. Specific examples of application to caring for Holocaust Survivors at end of life will be presented as well as information about intergeneration trauma and resilience. This workshop will include descriptive examples of trauma experienced by Survivors during the Holocaust and a brief Holocaust history aligned to the demographics of Survivors we encounter in practice in the GTA.
